

AMERICAN
PRAIRIE
RESERVE

The National Discovery Center celebrates the landscape, wildlife, and people of the plains of Montana. As the primary gateway to American Prairie Reserve, the National Discovery Center will be a catalyst for visitation, partnership, and community building. It will be a hub for dialogue and learning and the core of our efforts to increase public access to the Reserve and create a lasting public benefit.

American Prairie Reserve is dedicated to restoring a vital piece of our nation's biodiversity: a complete and fully functioning shortgrass prairie ecosystem. In fulfilling this ambitious goal, the Reserve will span a multi-million acre area, created by purchasing private lands to connect a vast mosaic of existing public lands so that the region is managed thoughtfully and collaboratively for wildlife conservation and public access to be enjoyed forever and by all. In addition to providing the space and habitat needed to restore the natural abundance and diversity of wildlife in the region, American Prairie promotes social tolerance for prairie species such as bison, swift foxes, black-footed ferrets, prairie dogs, and grizzly bears.

Clockwise from top left:
The Breaks, 12x16" oil on linen;
Missouri River Dusk, 12x16" oil on linen;
Thunderstorm, 12x16" oil on linen;
Larb Hills - Dawn, 12x16" oil on linen;
all images © Clyde Aspevig

Common Ground | Oil on linen, 6 x 10 feet

Clyde Aspevig

b. 1951, Havre, Montana

American Prairie proudly opens its National Discovery Center in Lewistown, Montana on September 8, 2021.

Installed in the Center's Clyde Aspevig Pavilion will be "Common Ground" by Clyde Aspevig, a 6 ft by 10 ft oil on canvas.

Studio open by appointment.

View other paintings online at www.ClydeAspevig.com

6690 Sourdough Canyon Road
Bozeman, Montana 59715
www.clydeaspevig.com

406-223-3543